

THE FUN OF THE FAIR

BY

ALEISTER CROWLEY

Royal 8vo, 32 pp., with a collotype portrait of Author

200 copies only, each signed and numbered, on the finest mould-made rag paper, pre-war quality

Price : One Guinea net

THE Fun of the Fair is a minute-by-minute record of my visit to Nijni Novgorod in Anno Domini 1913 E.N. The book will be as expensive and as nice as this prospectus is cheap and nasty.

I am sick and weary of everybody trying to cadge free books. Because I condescend from time to time to snub them, they run punore and say they were my mistresses, or at school with me, or marry me in some remote place where I have never been in my life, or—

And then, not being able to afford a traveller, I have to trudge round to dirty little booksellers to ask cheated 'wearing out shoes' which I cannot replace for lack of (a) coupons (b) cash, (c) materials.

This book costs round about half a Jimmy to produce, so where do I get it? (Must you? sez you.)

Is this a "cri du cœur"? No, it's a "cri du ventre"; pure, in brief that is what a thick about you.

If you want me to pretend to like you, brass up!

To ALEISTER CROWLEY,

93 JERMYN STREET, S.W.1.

I wish to subscribe for.....cop.....of the FUN OF THE FAIR which will be published at 1 gn. and enclose my cheque for.....Please send the cop.....when ready to:

Name.....

Address.....

Date.....